PEKING DELEGATE IS STILL IN CITY CLOSELY GUARDED

Wang Yi-tang Remaining
At Hardoon's Garden
For Present

INQUIRY IS BEGUN

Death Threat Letters In Hands Of Municipal Detectives

OPEN BOMB TODAY

Mystery Of 'The Chunghua Society' Being Probed By Police

While the last hope of reopening the peace conference in Shanghai is gone and it had been believed that Wang Yi-tang, spurred by threats directed against his life, had secretly fled from the city, it was learned yesterday that the Chief Northern Delegate, closely guarded, is still here. For the time being he is remaining at Hardoon's Garden, but he has ceased to receive any but trusted visitors and all approaches to the residence are being guarded by sentries.

In the meantime detectives of the Shanghai Municipal Police are conducting an investigation in connection with letters in which the threat to kill the Peking Delegate unless he leaves the city is made. This investigation is being carried out in connection with the other inquiry that was started when the bomb attack was made on the life of Wang Yi-tang at Hardoon's Garden last Sunday. The bomb was thrown over the wall at the residence and after it failed to explode the 21-pound missile was turned over to the police. It is being opened today by Acting Chief Detective Officer John Burnside of the Criminal Investigation Department.

THE CHUNG-HUA SOCIETY

The letters that threaten the life of the Peking Delegate are signed by an organization that styles itself the Chung-hua Society. Besides sending a communication to Wang Yi-tang, the Chung-hua Society's Peace Vigilance Society sent letters of the same threatening character to Chinese newspapers. In these, admitting responsibility for the bomb that had been thrown on Sunday, the organization wrote that the bomb had been designed only as a warning to Wang Yi-tang to leave. He had failed to heed that warning, the communications pointed out, and then follows the significant statement that "if you do not leave this place within five days we are prepared to sacrifice our last to challenge you. If we fail, more of us are coming, so there is no peaceful place for you to live in Shanghai."

It was after Chinese newspapers had made public the communications they had received that Wang Yi-tang became invisible and the report was spread that he had left the city.

Believed Dr. Sun Yat-sen Is Dealing With Peking

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Peking, October 22.—Semi-official Chinese circles believe that an understanding between Dr. Sun Yat-sen and Marshal Tuan is probable, but are of opinion that a general understanding between the North and the South with or without the inclusion of Dr. Sun could easily be brought about.

The refusal of Mr. Tang Shao-yi to receive his former self of office is not looked upon as a calamity in Peking owing to the belief that Mr. Tang will never be prepared to make concessions, while requiring the greatest submission from opponents.

Peking's Cabinet Problem Again Thrust Forward By Peace Conference Failure

Though President Favors Chou Shu-mo, Appointment Of Marshal Tuan Chi-jui, Nationally Known Militarist, As Premier Is Probable

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, October 23.—President Hsu Shih-chang is entertaining Tuan Chi-jui and Li Sheng-to, members of the Cabinet and the most prominent representatives of the Anfu Club on Saturday to dinner, where the formation of a new government will be discussed.

Peking, October 22.—It is officially denied today that any decision has been reached regarding the formation of a formal Cabinet under General Chin Yun-peng, but it is admitted that the matter is being discussed and may be carried out.

Permanent Cabinet Urged

On Government At Peking

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, October 19.—The Peking Government is being pressed from many quarters either to reorganise the present temporary Cabinet or appoint a formal ministry; and, indeed, the matter has already gone so far that numerous local newspapers have reported that a permanent Cabinet will soon come into being. All responsible officials still deny this report however, and state that the President is not yet prepared to make changes in the present Cabinet.

In connection with possible Cabinet changes the President is understood to favor the appointment of Chou Shu-mo as Premier, provided that internal peace can be restored without delay. Chou Shu-mo, an old colleague of President Hsu's under the Manchurian regime, has for many months been the President's personal choice for the premiership and would undoubtedly have obtained the post when Chien Neng-hsun resigned had it not been for his opposition to any interference by the Anfu Club with the formation of his Cabinet.

If peace could be established Chou would make a good candidate for the premiership; his official record is admitted by the entire country to be good and he would be much more acceptable to the South than a military man. Chou is an official of much the same type as President Hsu—experienced, conservative, honest; he would be a safe man as Premier and could command the respect of both the Chinese people and the foreign officials with whom he came into contact.

MARSHAL TUAN NAMED

If, on the other hand, the Shanghai Peace Conference fails to materialize—and this is regarded as more than probable in well-informed Peking circles—it is thought that Marshal Tuan Chi-jui will be asked to head a formal Northern Cabinet. Should the Peace Conference fail the North will require a strong leader with a nationwide reputation to negotiate and guarantee the military peace that the Northern militarists will then regard as the only way out of the present internal tangle; and Tuan is the logical man for the North to choose. Although Tuan

BRITISH PARLIAMENT TO DISCUSS FINANCES

Need Of Further Taxation To Be Presented In Motion
In House Of Lords

(Reuter's Service)

London, October 21.—Parliament assembled tomorrow. Members intend to press the Government to give an opportunity for the immediate discussion of the national finances, which are at the present time the burning question.

Lord Buckmaster will move in the House of Lords that further taxation is essential in view of the gravity of the financial position. Mr. Lloyd George yesterday presided at a finance meeting of the Cabinet which is considering retrenchment in the public departments.

Mr. Winston Churchill, in his letter to Dundee Liberals, further stated that the economic position of the Empire was sound and strong but its finances were woefully deranged though superior to any, except America's.

All minds, he wrote, should now be turned to the financial problem. The enormous debt was the main cause of the rise in prices, therefore a substantial diminution of the debt must be the first step towards an improvement of the purchasing power of money. The first object of the Government was to reduce expenditure. The was impossible in 1919. It must be achieved in 1920.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

In an out and out militarist he is none the less capable of holding moderate views and adapting himself in a measure to the views of the people. He has, too, greater influence among the nation's military leaders in both the North and the South than any man in China today; and his acceptance of the premiership, should circumstances render this necessary and advisable in his eyes, would be taken here as a guarantee that a peace of some kind would soon be arranged.

Nearly all classes of the people in the North want peace, the reactionary militarists feeling the necessity for it just as much as the liberal officials and the great masses of the people. The country, both in the North and in the South is desperately short of funds for Government purposes, and no adequate funds will be forthcoming until there is peace between the North and the South. Every one realises the situation and feels that something must be done to put the Government on a proper working basis again. Hence the desire of the militarists to make the only kind of a peace that they will hold good—a peace attained as the result of negotiation between the military leaders who can enforce it. They say openly that the means are not so important as the end, and that to attain that end any means are justifiable.

CONFERENCE IS FAILURE

When your correspondent pointed out to a leading representative of the Northern military party that the cause for the failure of the original Shanghai Conference lay in the fact that the militarists had consistently refused to sink their differences and stand by the terms negotiated by the delegates to the Conference, this official replied that this point was of no value now; the time for a peace made by delegates at Shanghai was now over; the Conference had failed forever, and it made no difference who was to blame for it. What was left to be done now was the negotiation of a prompt peace for which its sponsors would answer and for this the North, and indeed the whole country, required a Premier whom the military leaders respected and would follow; this man was Marshal Tuan Chi-jui.

In foreign quarters it is thought that Tuan Chi-jui is probably the only man who has a chance of leading the militarists of both North and South to national union and at the same time keeping the strong liberal elements of the people, who will oppose such a peace from start to finish, from breaking out against the Government. On the other hand they think, as do many influential Chinese, that no man in China is big enough to carry through both tasks to a successful end. The voice of the Chinese people is growing in strength, and there is probably not one military official in China today who appreciates the difficulties or the dangers of opposing the expressed wishes of his countrymen.

COTTON MEETING IN 1921 TO BE HELD IN BRITAIN

Sir Herbert Dixon Is Chosen President At Close Of Conference In U. S.

(Reuter's Service)

New Orleans, October 17.—At the cotton conference here British spinners were urged to send representatives to buy cotton direct from the farmers. Speakers agreed that no arbitrary price should be fixed for a given period.

The conference adopted an American proposal that congress should place at the disposal of the war finance corporation a thousand million dollars for the purpose of stabilising foreign exchange and also a sum sufficient to finance the exportation of at least a million bales of cotton.

The conference rejected the growers' recommendation that the sale of cotton on call and gambling in cotton and other necessities should be condemned but it adopted recommendations opposing Government fixing of cotton prices and an embargo on cotton in peace time and demanding that the selling price of cotton should allow a fair profit.

Sir Herbert Dixon was elected president of the next cotton conference, to be held in England in 1921.

Lower Silver Prices Looked For In London

London Times Expects Demand Will Fall Off And Supply Increase

(Reuter's Service)

London, October 17.—The Times in a leading article today says: "It seems to be reasonable to hope that there will shortly be a check on the demand for and some increase in the supply of silver. Mexican production is increasing and is undoubtedly susceptible of great development."

"Substitutes for silver currency may be adopted much more generally than they have been hitherto. The silver circulation in Great Britain is now £50,000,000 as compared with £15,000,000 before the war which seems unnecessarily large, and there should be ample margin for letting some silver go where it is much more urgently wanted."

PLANES CHINA ORDERED ARE OF LATEST DESIGN

Machines Will Have Speed Of 105 Miles Hour And Be Able To Carry 12 People

(Reuter's Service)

London, October 19.—The Times aeronautical correspondent says that the Vickers-Vimy commercial aeroplanes ordered by China are similar to the winner of the trans-Atlantic flight. Their length is 42 feet; height 15 feet; span, 67 feet.

They have two Rolls-Royce engines totalling 750 horsepower, a maximum speed of 105 miles an hour and a cruising speed of 90 miles an hour. They carry petrol sufficient for a six-hour flight and extra tanks can be fitted if necessary.

Besides two pilots, they can seat 12 passengers, "whose safety and comfort is every way studied." The maximum weight of freight and mail will be 2,000 pounds.

The correspondent adds that a number of skilled pilots, engineers and organisers will shortly proceed to China to establish the services and that the result will be an enormous quickening up of communications, with very far-reaching political, economical and commercial effects. "Soon," the writer concludes, "China will assume an entirely different aspect as a world factor."

London, October 17.—The Chinese Government £1,800,000 eight percent ten year loan issued to Messrs. Vickers, in payment for supplies to the Chinese Government, has been largely oversubscribed.

Japan Wants Mongolia To Yield Rule To China

Nipponese Are Reported To Be Urging Peking To Obtain Cancellation Of Autonomy

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, October 22.—According to Chinese reports the Japanese are urging China to secure cancellation of the independence of Outer Mongolia, for which the present moment is most favorable owing to the Unga Government being pressed for funds to meet administrative expenses, and to the unsettled conditions in Russia.

As the Bolshevik rule may end this winter, it is urged that no time should be lost. This plan is said to be a later development than the scheme to place Atanan Semenov at the head of a Mongolian Confederation, which has obviously failed, owing to the increase in power of the Omsk Government, as did Semenov's attempt to take control of the Chinese Eastern Railway last week. It is further stated that General Hsu Shih-chang will leave here shortly for Unga and establish himself there in anticipation of events to come.

General Hsu has again gone to Mukden to consult General Chang Tso-lin, and it is believed that the two Generals, whom a Chinese official recently referred to as the compradors of a foreign Power, are elaborating a plan for drastic changes in the conditions of Mongolia, and the Three Eastern Provinces.

CANNOT ORGANISE LEAGUE COUNCIL WITHOUT AMERICA

U.S. Senate Must First Ratify Treaty, Paris Council Rules

AWAITS DECISION

Temporary Body Will Be Named To Deal With Emergencies

9 POWERS TO ACT

First Question Awaiting Attention Has To Do With Saar Valley

(American Press Wireless)

Peking, October 22.—(American Press Wireless from Lyons).—Paris, October 20.—Until the United States ratifies the Peace Treaty there cannot be instituted a permanent Council of the League of Nations. Such was the decision taken today by the Supreme Council. Meanwhile the American Mission learns that some sort of temporary Council will be set up to deal with pressing matters contained in the Treaty.

This temporary body will begin to function here simultaneously with the promulgation of the Treaty. Its executive powers, however, are not clearly defined. From the time that the Treaty becomes effective, the League of Nations becomes a living institution and it is hoped that it will have a permanent council directly the Senate ratifies the instrument of peace. Meanwhile the Secretariat of the League will be operating here, though its duties will be confined to recording matters to be brought before the Council. It will have no power to make any decision.

NINE REPRESENTATIVES
Representatives of nine nations will form the first Council of the League of Nations. These are America, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan, of the Big Powers and Belgium, Brazil, Greece and Spain for the smaller Powers.

As outlined in previous despatches there is a strong desire to have the League of Nations operating as early as possible. France and Great Britain are the two nations most in favor of this plan. However, they will await the advice and help of the United States before taking any decision which might have a far-reaching effect. Besides, they point out that the United States being represented at the Conference meetings when matters were referred pending the institution of the League, it seems only proper that decisions should be taken with equal responsibility by the nations which discussed them earliest.

SAAR VALLEY FIRST POINT

The permanent Council and the possible temporary one, if the United States presence is too long delayed, will have before it as the first matter on which decision must be taken in an interval of fifteen days from the date on which the Treaty becomes effective the delimitation of the Saar Valley. While little hope is entertained that the Senate will ratify the treaty early enough to allow America to take part in these Councils, there is a strong desire to have America present at the opening meeting and it is possible that American representatives will be asked to attend but will have no power to vote or take part in the decisions reached.

$3 The Opera $3

On and from tomorrow the "usual" prices will be charged for the Russian Grand opera, at both the Lyceum and Olympic Theaters by which we mean that the prices will be $3.00, $2.00 and $1.00. Gallery prices are reduced from today, Saturday.

Last night the Lyceum gave its last performance of "Aida" with Miss Guseva in the title role. Verdi's great opera was again splendidly presented. The massive choruses with which the opera makes so much of its effect, were brilliantly sung. These and the fine cast of characters as at the last production roused enthusiasm.

The reduction of prices will be welcomed by many opera-lovers. There is a long list announced of fresh works. Tonight "Barber of Seville," with a special ballet and on subsequent dates, "Pagliacci" with "Cavalleria Rusticana," "Traviata," "Tosca" (repeated), "The Pearl Fishers," "Pique Dame" ("The Queen of Spades") and "The Jewess."

Tchackovsky's "Eugene Onegin" is announced for Sunday, Nov. 2. Tomorrow's operas are "Carmen" in the afternoon (last performance) and "Damon" at 9:15; both at the Olympic Theater.

"THE BARBER OF SEVILLE"
The play to be given tonight is "The Barber of Seville," a comic opera in two acts. The music for this was written by Rossini, and the text by Serbelli, is founded on the trilogy of Beaumarchais.

The plot is very simple. The Count Almaviva loves Rosina, the ward of Dr. Bartolo, a crusty old bachelor who secretly wishes to wed her himself. Almaviva persuades the village barber, Figaro, to arrange a meeting for him, and gains entrance to the house disguised as a doctor, but is arrested by the guardian. Not discouraged, he returns, pretending to be a substitute for Rosina's music teacher, who, he says, is ill. The appearance of the real Don Basilio spoils the plan, and the Count retreats for the second time having, however, arranged a plan for elopement. Bartolo finally arouses Rosina's jealousy by pretending that the Count loves another, and she promises to forget him and marry her guardian. When the time for the elopement arrives she meets the Count, intending to reproach him, but he convinces her of the treachery of Bartolo, and the lovers are wedded by a notary, just as Bartolo arrives with officers to arrest the Count.

Overtured Lamp Causes Bad Blaze

Ignites Wedding Flare And Flames Sweep Through Many Houses

An oil lamp upset among a quantity of fire being prepared for a wedding ceremony started a blaze which gave the Fire Brigade a strenuous time in the congested Tong Dong Ka Loong district early yesterday morning.

The alarm was turned in at 4:55 o'clock and the firemen on arrival found the flames sweeping through the Chinese dwelling houses in a small alleyway to the east of North Chekiang Road. The outbreak had already got a strong start and was making progress in all directions. It was attacked from two sides by the Hongkew and Sina divisions of the Brigade and by a section from Central department and was checked after a hard fight.

Three houses were gutted, two others were badly damaged throughout, six were damaged on the first floors and a number of others were more or less affected by smoke, fire and water. While the blaze was in progress another alarm was turned in reporting a fire at North Fokien Road and a section from Central turned out but could find no trace of an outbreak.

BROADWAY BLAZE CHECKED

The Brigade checked a third outbreak in brief time shortly after 6 o'clock last evening when there was a fire in a Chinese provision godown at A-1124 Broadway. The Central section which turned out found the fire among a stack of boxes of tinned provisions far back in the godown and spreading rapidly, having already attacked the ceiling and floor. About three minutes' efficient work prevented a serious blaze, for the building was packed with stock and is closely surrounded by other godowns and houses.

FIRE IN CHAPEL

Twenty or thirty Chinese huts to the west of Helen Terrace were destroyed by fire early last evening. The Shanghai fire department was notified although the blaze was in Chapel and Central and Hongkew Divisions laid long lines of hose down Helen Terrace and the alleyways at the back, firemen making the fight on three sides.

The alarm was received at 5:58 o'clock and it was seven o'clock before the fire was finally surrounded and completely under control. A section was left on duty. The Chapel Brigade responded but did not work as the hydrants were too far from the scene.

At The Mixed Court

A householder sentenced to three months in jail by the Mixed Court yesterday was found to have 26 pawn tickets hidden in his room, most of them representing articles he had stolen from the household of Dr. E. D. Jackson at 3A Fooking Road.

When the family moved recently, an electric fan disappeared and the coolie in question insisted it was in an upstairs room, though he could not find it there. Later he brought it in, showing the people he had found it. The householder said that the man had just taken it out of pawn. The coolie was very angry, according to testimony of occupants of the house. Shortly afterward, someone broke into the household's personal box and stole his clothing. Then the doctor sent for the police. The search revealed the store of pawn tickets. In the accused coolie's room and the recovery of some of the goods proved them to have been stolen from the Jackson household.

BRITISH AGRICULTURE WILL BE ENCOURAGED

Plan To Stimulate Industry Outlined By Premier Lloyd George In Address

(Reuter's Service)

London, October 21.—The central and associated chambers of agriculture passed a resolution warning the Government that the reduction of the hours of agricultural laborers would seriously limit home-grown food production, increase the cost of living and diminish employment on the land.

Addressing a meeting of agriculturists today in London Mr. Lloyd George outlined the Government's policy as regards agriculture. He emphasised the fact that agriculture was the greatest industry in the country and the Government wanted to restore its previous prosperity. Great Britain produced before the war two-fifths of her food-stuffs, and imported three-fifths.

During the war she produced three-fifths and imported two-fifths. He urged the vital necessity of restoring the 4,500,000 acres of land which had gone out of cultivation since 1870. The cultivator naturally asked for security and was essential to give him a guarantee covering a sufficient number of years to justify the farmer breaking up his land.

Moreover, the farmer must be protected when land was sold over his head. Therefore, it was proposed that his tenancy should be secured. On the other hand there must be a guarantee that the farmer would do his best to get the maximum production.

The Government was determined to put agriculture upon a satisfactory basis and would secure credit for alleviating rainfall and other transport costs, for increased technical instruction, and for the promotion of labor-saving devices.

ABSTINENCE LEAGUE DISCUSSES PROPAGANDA

Enforcement Of Present Laws And Closer Contact With Businessmen Advised

Propaganda methods in temperance reform were discussed yesterday at the Men's Total Abstinence League meeting, held in the Royal Asiatic Society quarters, 5 Museum Road. Dr. W. H. Lacy presided and following the regular speakers a general discussion was entered into by the audience. The speakers were Messrs. Frank Rawlinson, Paul Hutchinson, M. T. Stauffer, and Isaac Mason.

Many suggestions for effective propaganda were made. Among them might be summarised as follows:

Mr. Rawlinson—Unite the independent temperance organisations; publish a bulletin; enforce the present laws; work with the English-speaking Chinese and Japanese in Shanghai.

Mr. Mason—Publish a full-sized newspaper giving the world news of prohibition.

Mr. Stauffer—Bridge the chasm between missionaries and businessmen, efforts of "Goody-goodies" trying to reach young business men from a distance utterly futile; look to the economic pressure from "dry" and more efficient America to arouse other countries.

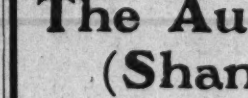

Mr. Hutchinson—Increased instead of decreased rents have followed for owners of saloon buildings after saloons closed; parade of "wets" in Washington advertised as 100,000 was but 4,000 by count.

CHINESE YOUNG WOMEN LAUNCH ORGANISATION

Program Of Club Activities To Be Started Next Week
By Returned Students

At a meeting held yesterday at the Y.W.C.A., about 20 Chinese ladies, graduates of American colleges and a few educated in England, France and Belgium, gathered to effect a permanent organisation after six months' trial of a tentative scheme to bring together all foreign trained women on a basis of intellectual and social co-operation.

Mrs. H. C. Mei, a graduate of Columbia University and the wife of Dr. Mei, the lawyer, was unanimously chosen chairman, with Mrs. Fred Chur as vice-chairman, Miss Grace Yang as secretary, and Miss Eling Tong as treasurer.

Mrs. Mei in proposing the permanent organisation referred to the growing number of women graduates returning to China from Europe and America and of the need of some bond of union whereby they might labor for the national good and the community welfare. She stated that with such a body of educated women in Shanghai much of incalculable value might be accomplished along well-known lines of activity followed in American women's clubs.

The object of the club was to cultivate in themselves and in their sister-women a spirit of mutual helpfulness in matters of feminine interest and to promote by all rational and lawful means their common welfare.

Mrs. Mei and her associates are planning a constructive program of club activities to be commenced next week and they hope to expand gradually until the women of the higher Chinese classes all become interested.

OLD McTYEIRE GIRLS TO ORGANISE TODAY

All old students of McTyre School, 1 Edinburgh Road, whether alumnae or not, are invited to attend a reception this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the school for the purpose of organising a McTyre's old students' association. It is expected that a large number of women who once attended the institution will take the opportunity of attending.

A roll call will take place at 3 o'clock and the names of all the thousand girls who were members of the school will be called and the girls present will answer to their names as well as tell something about their present occupation and life.

The need of an organisation for the old students has been felt for a considerable time among the students who have left school and who did not go away with diplomas and a large number of letters have been pouring into the administration, suggesting and devising means of organising a society for the old students.

ITALIAN WOMEN GET VOTE

Present Cabinet Is Almost Unanimous for Electoral Reform

Rome, September 4.—At last, after the fifty-six years the question has been debated, the women of Italy have received the political and administrative vote. As in other countries this great electoral reform is accepted almost with unanimity by the members of the present chamber.

It was first presented in 1863 by Peruzzi and the question has been brought forward every few years since then. It was reopened in 1880. Francesco Crispi, then Prime Minister, inexorably opposed it, as the great English statesman, Gladstone, did eight years before in his country.

The representatives in more modern times who have had opposing views regarding women's suffrage have been Premier Giolitti and Baron Sonnino, the former holding that the concession of administrative and civil rights to women should precede the gift of the political vote, saying also frankly that the admission to the voting lists of 6,000,000 women would be such "a leap in the dark" that the Government could not undertake the responsibility.

Baron Sonnino, on the other hand, took the view lately expounded by Lloyd George in England favoring the concession of the political vote to women in order to enable them to obtain other just and fair social and administrative rights which the great majority of voters in the whole world are now ready to concede them.

London Exchange Goes Wild Over Gold Mining Stocks

London, Sept. 24.—One of the wildest gambles in the history of gold mining is going on in the London Stock Exchange, the shares involved being those of Hampton Properties, Limited, a western Australian company with a property of 27,000 acres in Hampton Plains, a gold field about twenty miles south of the famous Kalgoorlie field. Hampton Properties has issued capital of $360,000, and, formed over twenty years ago, has never paid a dividend. Indeed, until recently it was looked upon as practically moribund. Now its shares are all the rage.

Early this month news began to filter through of phenomenally high finds of gold having been made on the Hampton Plains field. One of the richest discoveries is said to have been made on a block belonging to Hampton Properties. Shares which could have been bought for a few pence a fortnight ago soared in a short time to over par, that is, 20 shillings.

Yesterday the gold shares fever became more virulent and the price was quickly doubled. Today business was done at 51 shillings and 3 pence, but there was a setback before the end to 45 shillings.

ALBERT'S HOPES REVIVED

Shell-Wrecked Town Rejoices

One Of Our Future Generals Up For Air, So To Speak

In their black weeds and those sturdy men of Picardy when he told of the new hope that lay in the future, now that "the damned days," as he called them, had passed with their horrors, their slaughter of men and their degradation of humanity. Sin had brought war into the world, he said, and had caused all that ruin. Now, by virtue of the people, by the new faith born out of agony, they could look forward to a new world and rebuild the country that had been destroyed.

I met the Archbishop as he walked afterward in the town, blessing the people who had come back, and he said:

"We are making a beginning—no more than that—to give life again to this poor, stricken place. It is a day of great heart and of good hope, but it will take a long, long time to make this desert fertile."

He glanced toward the Somme battlefields up the road to Bayonne. Up there, where I walked, it was lonely as of old, and the desert remained with its trenches sitting in its shell holes, in which weeds were growing. The great mine crater at La Boisselle, the dead trees, the litter and filth of the old battles, the entanglements of barbed wire, the dumps of "dud" shells, the salvage of war material, had hardly changed from the old fighting days.

BATTLEFIELD STILL A WASTE

Only a few tourists in the great cars from Paris which stayed in Albert wandered out as far as this. The yellow roan squatted around; a group of German prisoners without escort sauntered by cheerfully—they are soon going home, now—and up by Pozières some Australian soldiers—the last of their crowd—were playing basket ball near a graveyard of their comrades. Beyond, by Deville Wood and High Wood, Longueval and Mametz Wood, there was an immense solitude. Nothing had been done or was being done to restore this devastated region except by the removal of high explosives and the decent burial of the discovered dead. No houses, so far as I have seen, are being built on the sites of the villages which were blown off the earth.

France has still that broad highway of horror across her land, and even in one's imagination one cannot see the renaissance in our time of that dead country, though the people who fled from it into many other parts are impatient to go back and blame their Government for not raising their villages as quickly as they were destroyed. The pity is that so many laborers of France were destroyed with the villages and fields, so that now the builders are few, while money is hard to get for building. That is the problem with which France is faced.

CEREMONIES IN LONDON MARK TRAFALGAR DAY

Nelson's Column Is Decorated And Dean Inge Presides
At Memorial Service

(Reuter's Service)

London, October 21.—On the occasion of Trafalgar Day, the base of Nelson's Column in Trafalgar Square was decorated with wreaths from numerous warships and naval bases and also from the Dominions' High Commissioners, while Lady Fremantle, the wife of Admiral Sir Edmund Fremantle, placed a special wreath on the tomb of Nelson in St. Paul's.

Dean Inge preached a memorial sermon at St. Martin-in-the-Fields in the course of which he declared that despite disquieting symptoms, there was no proof that the British were a decadent nation but their best elements must unite and organise, for they were confronted with a hard struggle.

Some scoffed at patriotism but what would scoffers give us instead? Dean Inge remarked that the present popular culture had no roots. One of the most needful things in national education was the inclusion of the intelligent teaching of English history.

"PRICELESS"

is a popular way of describing anything which has proved to be of exceptional value, and may therefore be employed to describe that old and favourite preparation—Beecham's Pills. The ever-increasing army of men and women who have experience of this excellent medicine generally use some such phrase as "priceless" or "Worth a guinea a box" when speaking of Beecham's Pills. This is certainly high praise. But it is well-merited. Beecham's Pills have proved, times out of number, to be a "priceless" preparation in the treatment of digestive ailments. They bring relief; they safeguard the health; they effect remarkable cures. All who suffer in any way from biliousness, sick headache, constipation, impaired appetite, and the resulting loss of energy and want of tone should take

The sense of the miraculous was strong in the hearts of many French peasants today amidst the ruins of Albert, where I saw an act of faith in the renaissance of France after the death-blow of war in a scene where there was little but faith to encourage the people. All the British soldiers and the

NEED NOT REFUND GREAT WAR DEBT

United States Treasurer States That Important Financial Advance Is Made

Washington, September 14.—The United States treasury now plans to finance the nation's great war debt without great refunding operations. The success of the issues of treasury certificates of indebtedness to meet current financial needs of the government has been such as to mark an important advance in the process of financing the war debt.

These statements are made by Secretary of the Treasury Glass in a message to the federal reserve banks. So successful was the issue of treasury certificates offered on September 2 that no more will be offered until October 15, whereas they heretofore have been issued semi-monthly. Tax certificates, which are acceptable in payment of income and profits taxes, will be issued this month, but the earlier maturity will bear interest at the rate of 4 1/2 percent instead of the 4 1/4 percent rate hitherto paid on the certificates of indebtedness.

"The third semi-monthly issue of treasury certificates of indebtedness was offered without asking the banking institutions of the country to subscribe for any specified quota," Secretary Glass says. "The treasury felt confident that these certificates could be sold in amounts more than sufficient to meet the reduced needs of the government without assigning the usual quota to individual banking institutions."

"This confidence was amply justified by the event. The aggregate amount subscribed for and allotted was $573,841,500, a sum greater by about $40,000,000 than the amount subscribed for either of the two preceding issues, each of which had definite quota assignments. The aggregate was in excess of the immediate requirements of the treasury."

EXPENSES DECLINING

"The aggregate amount of treasury certificates of indebtedness still outstanding on August 30 of the several series maturing or called for redemption on September 9 and 15 was $1,799,041,500. This entire sum—which has since been reduced by exchanges and cash redemption—is provided for from cash in bank and income and profits taxes, due September 15.

leaving ample balance in the general fund. There remain no maturities of certificates to provide for prior to 1920, as those maturing December 15 are more than covered by the income and profits taxes instalment due on that date.

"In the month of August ordinary and special disbursements exceeded ordinary receipts by less than $500,000,000. In September, because of the income and profits tax instalment payments, ordinary receipts should exceed ordinary and special disbursements by approximately $500,000,000.

"The success of the recent issues of Treasury certificates, the fortunate cash position of the treasury at the moment, and the reinvestment demand which will result from the payment of so large an amount of certificates on or before September 15, create a situation which should be availed of to make an important step forward in financing the debt growing out of the war. In July, I indicated that the treasury certificate program might be varied at opportune times by the substitution of issues of tax certificates. This obviously is an opportune time, and accordingly the treasury is offering two series of so-called tax certificates, both dated September 15, 1919, series T. 9, maturing March 15, 1920, and bearing interest at the rate of 4 1/4 percent and series T. 10, maturing September 15, 1920, and bearing interest at the rate of 4 1/2 percent, payable semi-annually.

ASKS BANKS TO AID

"It is not possible to say definitely when semi-monthly issues of loan certificates will be resumed, nor upon what terms they will be issued, but such issues will certainly not be resumed before October 15, and the minimum amount offered should not exceed $250,000,000.

"I hope that every banking institution will not only subscribe liberally for the certificates now offered but also will use its best endeavors to procure the widest possible redistribution among investors. The certificates, although acceptable in payment of income and profits taxes payable at maturity, are payable in cash when they mature, and should make a wide appeal to investors because of their valuable exemptions from taxation and attractive maturities.

"The success of those issues will be an important advance in the process of financing the war debt in such a way as to avoid the necessity for great refunding operations, by spreading maturities and meeting them, so far as may be, out of tax receipts. Incorporated banks and trust companies which are not qualified depositaries are urged to become such, in order that they, like others, may participate in the temporary deposits growing out of these issues.

"The patriotic, loyal, and enlightened support which the banking institutions of the country gave to the treasury during the darkest days of the war, and continued through the perhaps more difficult period after the cessation of hostilities, when war expenditures were at their peak, justifies the treasury in addressing to them this confident appeal now that the turn of the tide has come."

Flu Being Studied At Pasteur Institute

Results Of Recent Experiments Are Announced To Pathology Society

(American Press Wireless)
Peking, Oct. 23. (Wireless from Lyons, France).—Visible microbes play only a secondary part in influenza, according to experiments that have been in progress at the Pasteur Institute. In reporting the results of recent investigations Doctor Ortocon told the French Pathology Society that grip is caused by a putrefaction produced by an invisible virus. Doctor Ortocon said he had succeeded in infecting animals with influenza by a process from which a system of treatment of the disease in humans might be developed.

Children Cry for Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is particularly a preparation for Infants and Children made agreeable to the taste, acceptable to the stomach and pleasant in its action. It has been in use for over thirty years and has always been one of the most highly esteemed of all cathartic preparations. It has one great advantage over other preparations of its kind in that while it opens the organs readily and completely, it does not have a tendency to produce subsequent constipation so much to be dreaded.
It was only after years of research in the fields of herbs and roots for a combination of purely vegetable matter that would have all the virtues of Castor Oil, without its disagreeable, nauseating properties, especially when used for infants or children, that the formula used in Fletcher's Castoria was found, and which for over 30 years has proven its worth. Try it.

Save the Babies.

Infantry mortality is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one quarter die before they reach one year, thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one half before they are fifteen! We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save many of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestion, sickness, death. To avoid any possibility of giving your child opiates, or narcotics of any kind, keep Fletcher's Castoria in the house, and Save the Babies.

Banking Service with AMERICA—direct and personal

EXPORTERS or importers now engaged in, or thinking of, trade with America would do well to consider not only the special nature of our facilities, but also the personal interest we take in every one of our customers' transactions.

First of all, we offer direct banking service—with-out intermediary dealings, or unnecessary delays.

Equally important is our personal service. Every transaction is followed through, both here and in America, by our own representatives with a personal interest, the value of which is evident in the service rendered.

May we talk with you about America?

An Anonymous Interview

FOR the first time in its long and romantic history, so far as we know that history, Reuter's has telegraphed a column interview with an unnamed Chinese official.
The telegram came from Peking and was printed in yesterday's CHINA PRESS. The whole thing struck us as unusual. In the first place, Reuter's is not in the habit of telegraphing anonymous interviews and neither is any other news agency. Secondly, the official interviewed showed that he had a better grasp of the world situation than has been the case with any Chinese official we have ever come across—that is, he had it from one standpoint, if we may judge the thing both by what he said and by what he left unsaid.

What we are coming to is this:
The interview begins, centers and ends on one note, i.e., China's disappointment over the action of the United States Senate in the matter of Shantung, this without any mention whatever of the fact that America's hands were tied with regard to Shantung by the secret treaties which France and Great Britain had made with Japan.
Why a Chinese official so conversant with the whole situation in the Far East, which was produced, not by the Senate's action, but by these secret treaties, should fail to mention them in discussing Shantung, we don't know.
His failure to mention them is but one more of the things that strike us as unusual in this telegraphed interview with an anonymous official.

The interview begins this way:
"There is no doubt that the American Senate's rejection of the Shantung amendment has created a profound impression in China.
The Chinese, like foreigners in China, consider that the situation in the Far East should occupy a paramount position in the councils of the Great Powers," etc. Later on the anonymous official is quoted as saying: "Chinese opinion on the rejection of the Shantung amendment can be broadly divided into two classes: Those who say that their friend America has failed them, and that nothing now remains but to begin negotiations with Japan concerning Shantung, and if the result be too terrible, throw the whole case into the League of Nations for settlement," etc.

Then there is a reference to President Wilson's "Magnificent, if idealistic work." A reading of the whole interview would leave an ordinary person, either foreign or Chinese, under the impression that it was due to America that Japan, instead of China, obtained the German rights in Shantung.

The plain facts are that China got no consideration at Paris from any power excepting America. This for the simple reason that the hands of Great Britain and France were tied by their secret treaties with Japan referred to above. The representatives of Britain and France would have been mightily pleased if President Wilson could have got them out of the hole they were put in by these treaties. But Japan declined to relinquish her claims under them and if Japan chose to stand pat, which she did, there was nothing that the President could do short of war; and as President Wilson has since pointed out, such a war might have meant war not only with Japan but with the signatories to these secret treaties.

Furthermore, after the Treaty of Peace had been agreed upon, President Wilson's pressure upon Japan continued, and eventually Japan agreed verbally to the return of Kiaochow to China, holding firm however for the retention of the other German rights.

Then the Treaty of Peace went to the respective Parliaments for ratification. There were debates in London and Paris on various sections of the Treaty but the Shantung deal caused hardly a flurry, for the reason, as we have pointed out, that there was nothing to be said about it in London and Paris.
The governments of those two countries were committed by their secret treaties with Japan, and unless Japan should choose to yield, they could, in honor, do nothing.

But what happened in America?
That country, to put it mildly, was torn wide open by the Shantung revelations. The Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, after long and bitterly controversial hearings, recommended to the Senate that the German rights be given to China instead of to Japan. It began to look as if the Senate would act favorably on the report of its committee. President Wilson was forced to tour the country in defense of the Treaty as it stood and he was put to such extraordinary physical and mental exertion that his health broke down.
All this because he knew that the Senate's proposed action would undo the whole work of the Versailles Conference, and would kill the proposed League of Nations before it was born. Such action would have led to the reopening of the Treaty of Peace, and to a new international crisis; it would have made a new world war imminent; it would have given Germany the chance for which she was waiting.

Yet, in face of all these grave responsibilities, the American Senate went ahead with its program in behalf of China, and only at the last moment was turned aside; and then by a vote of 55 to 35. And the latest news is that the Shantung matter is again to be revived. The whole matter of Shantung has been rattled long ago by the other countries and only America has taken it seriously to heart. And only America is still fighting about it, trying to find out the rights and wrongs of it.

The truth is, that at bottom America is not to blame in the slightest degree for the Shantung matter, and France and Britain have very little if anything to account for. The whole blame rests with Japan which persists in hitting a prostrate neighbor with a battle axe at every opportunity, and with the Chinese governing class which is responsible for China's prostration.

We note, further, that our morning and evening senior contemporaries yesterday succeeded in discussing the Shantung matter, somewhat after the fashion of the anonymous Reuter's interview, without referring to the secret treaties, which were responsible for the Shantung decision.
And we hope, in conclusion, that Reuter's will have the facts here stated translated into Chinese for the benefit of the aforementioned anonymous Chinese official, and will telegraph us another anonymous column of his comments thereon.

Mr. W. B. Yeats And The Human Family

"When I close my eyes and pronounce the word 'Christianity' and await its unconscious suggestion, I do not see Christ crucified, or the Good Shepherd from the catacombs, but a father and mother and their children, a picture by Leonardi da Vinci most often," writes W. B. Yeats in the Irish Statesman.

"While Europe had still Christianity for its chief preoccupation man painted little but that scene.
Yet what Christian economists said of the family seemed to me conventional and sentimental till I had met with Balzac. Now I understand them."

A WAYSIDE WELL

"Yesterday I came upon a little wayside well planted about with roses, a sight I had not seen before in Ireland, and it brought to mind all that planting of flowers, all that cleanness and neatness that the countryman's ownership of his farm has brought with it in Ireland, and also the curious doctrine of Solov-iev, that no family has the full condition of perfection that cannot share in what he calls the spiritualisation of the soil—a doctrine derivable, perhaps, from the truth that all emotional units find their definition through the image, unlike those of the intellect, which are defined in the logical processes."

"However, Soloviev is a dry, ascetic, half-man, and may see nothing beyond a round of the more obvious virtues approved by his Greek Church. I understand by 'soil' all the matter in which the soul works, the walls of our houses, the serving up of our meals, and the chairs and tables of our rooms, and the instincts of our bodies;
and by 'family' all institutions, classes, orders, nations that arise out of the family and are held together, not by a logical process, but by historical association, and possess a personality for whose lack men are 'sheep without a shepherd when the snow shuts out the sun.'"

FROM CHISEL AND BRUSH

"If, as these writers affirm, the family is the unit of social life, and the origin of civilisation which but exists to preserve it, and almost the sole cause of progress, it seems more natural than it did before that its ecstatic moment, the sexual choice of man and woman, should be the great part of all poetry. A single wrong choice may destroy a family, dissipating its tradition or its biological force, and the great sculptors, painters, and poets are there that instinct may find its lamp."

"When a young man imagines the woman of his hope, shaped for all the uses of life, mother, and mistress, and yet fitted to carry a bow in the wilderness, how little of it all is mere instinct, how much has come from chisel and brush!
Educationists and statesmen, servants of the logical process, do their worst, but they are not the matchmakers who bring together the fathers and mothers of the generations, nor shall the type they plan survive."

"When we compare any modern writer, except Balzac, with the writers of an older world, with, let us say, Dante, Villon, Shakespeare, Cervantes, we are in the presence of something slight and shadowy," writes W. B. Yeats. "It is natural for a man who believes that man finds his happiness here on earth, or not at all, to make light of all obstacles to that happiness, and to deny altogether the insuperable obstacles seen by religious philosophy."

"The strength and weight of Shakespeare, of Villon, of Dante, even of Cervantes, came from their preoccupation with evil. In Shelley, in Ruskin, in Wordsworth, who for all his formal belief was, as Blake saw, a descendant of Rousseau, there is a constant resolution to dwell upon good only; and from this comes their lack of the sense of character, which is defined always by its defects or its incapacity, and their lack of the dramatic sense; for them human nature has lost its antagonist."

What's The Idea?

Under the caption, "Ireland or Great Britain Most Pressing Problem," a Northern contemporary which is Japanese owned and edited, prints the following, which it says is by "Our British Contributor":

The Labor Troubles, tremendous though they are, pale into insignificance when compared with the difficulty of the Irish situation. Ireland has always been the open sore of the British Empire, its one dark storm center, clouding at all times and seasons its otherwise clear horizon. Differences of opinion, concerning the policy to be pursued with a view to the final settlement of that unhappy land, have in the past become so acute as to split at the House of Commons, that the Lloyd George Government has been postponed attempting legislation. Apparently since the General Election of last December nothing has been done by His Majesty's Executive, beyond merely carrying on the state of things in the hope that something might meanwhile turn up. It has not been merely a case of laissez faire but of being unable to evolve a scheme which would commend itself to the whole of Ireland. The Government today is compelled to keep Ireland in check by the maintenance there of a large contingent of armed men. The military force occupying Ireland at the present minute comprises something like 60,000 men, a force nearly equal in numbers to the Expeditionary Army sent by Great Britain into France during the early days of the war. The Government dare not remove the men either, for the whole country is seething with discontent and open rebellion might break out at any moment. Grave disorders are frequently occurring, while property and even life are almost at a discount. Martial law is in existence and must of necessity continue. Such a condition of things right at the heart of the British Empire in these enlightened days is a reversion to the Middle Ages and something has got to be done to make it the peaceful and prosperous country it should be. The sad part of the whole business lies in the apparent impotency and utter inability of Great Britain's cleverest statesmen to hit upon a plan which will bring the desired metamorphosis. The Irish problem has baffled the best men and today it is no nearer a satisfactory solution. The Home Rule Bill has been on the Statute Book for four years. According to the Daily Mail (always a well informed British journal) the act may become law immediately Turkey signs the Peace Treaty.
But no one familiar with Irish affairs can imagine that this will bring satisfaction to the people of that country. The Home Rule Bill as it stands will never appease the Sinn Feiners, while it will only outrage the Ulsterites under Sir Edward Carson. Ireland will not have it, in its present form, at any price. What then is the British Government to do? Civil War within the Empire is out of the question, and must be avoided at all costs.

Irishmen have been given the opportunity of discovering a scheme for the final settlement of the government of their particular country (the recent Irish Convention was called for this purpose) but they could not then unanimously agree upon one. The Government then must now come to the rescue and upon them devolves the duty of discovering the avenue and only road, which will eventually lead the Irish people into the paths of Peace and Prosperity. Indications are not lacking that Mr. Lloyd George and his Cabinet are at work upon a plan. We can therefore confidently look forward to the introduction of legislation in the House of Commons, which will have for its outcome the settlement of the Irish question. If the House accepts, what the Government intend, the Empire will insist upon its being given an honest trial by the Irish people. The British people can ask for nothing more or less. Things could not be worse in Ireland than they are to day and any effort to bring about an improvement in the affairs of that country will not be allowed frustration by any particular political faction or party.

Same Old Stuff

BY HERR MULLER

(The German Foreign Minister in a recent speech to the Reichstag) The Best peace is annulled. It was a war measure.

It must be a fixed principle for the German Government that we do not interfere in the internal affairs of the Russian people. If the evacuation of the Baltic lands has hitherto only been partly carried out, it was owing to difficulties of transport, to the confused political and military situation, and to the need of protecting the life and property of the German population.

The evacuation of Lettland will be carried out as speedily as possible. The Government will, of course, in no way interfere in the internal political affairs of Lett-land. We hope that the maintenance of good relations may be possible with the young Lithuanian State, the formation of which was promoted by us. Lithuanian territory, too, will speedily be evacuated.

The independence of Poland was first proclaimed by Germany and Austria on November 8, 1916. Millions of Germans will in future be under Polish dominion. The handing over of territories to Poles will be carried out without friction or acts of violence. The Government will try to secure for the Germans a reliable protection of minorities.

The World's Hope Of Mercy And Peace

(From the President's Speech at Salt Lake City)

Let us go into particulars, therefore. These gentlemen say:
"We do not want the United States drawn into every little European squabble." Why, of course we do not, and under the League of Nations it is entirely within our choice whether we will be or not. The new process of the action of the League are certainly to be this: When trouble arises in the Balkans, when somebody sets up a fire somewhere in Central Europe among these little nations which are looking upon one another with a good deal of jealousy and suspicion because the passions of the world have not cooled—whenever that happens, the Council of the League will confer as to the best method of putting out the fire.

If you want to put out a fire in the Balkans, if you want to stamp out the smoldering flame in some part of Central Europe, you do not send to the United States for troops.
The Council of the League selects the Powers which are most ready, most available, most suitable, and selects them only at their own consent, so that the United States would in no such circumstances conceivably be drawn in, unless the flame spread to the world. And would they then be left out even if they were not members of the League? You have seen the fire spread to the world once, and did not you go in? If you saw human liberty again imperiled, would you wait to be a member of the League to go in?

Why, the whole thing goes directly to the conscience of the nation. If the light is big enough to draw the United States in, I predict that they will be drawn in anyhow; and if it is not big enough to bring them in inevitably, they can go in or stay out according to our own decision. Why are these gentlemen afraid? There is no force to oblige the United States to do anything except moral force. Is any man, any proud American, afraid that the United States will resist the duress of duty?

There is no necessity for the last part of this reservation.
Everybody in the world knows, and I say that advisedly—I mean every public man, every statesman in the world knows—that in order that the United States should go to war it is necessary for the Congress to act. They do not have to be told that, but that is not what this resolution says. This resolution says the United States assumes no obligation under the provisions of Article X, to preserve the territorial integrity or political independence of any other country—wishes to reserve the whole business.

In other words, that is an absolute withdrawal of the obligations of Article X, and that is why I say that it would be a rejection of the covenant and thereby a rejection of the Treaty, for the Treaty cannot be executed without the covenant.

(New York Times)

Much time has passed since the Treaty was submitted to the Senate, much thought and speech has been devoted to it. There has been some display of passion, some ill-considered utterances which we are sure have brought agreement and decision any nearer. The President, in some of his earlier speeches, referred to the opposing Senators in terms that, when he recalled them, he must have regretted as sincerely as his countrymen did, and Senator New said in the debate yesterday that he would regard it as treason to vote for the Treaty without the reservations reported by the Foreign Relations Committee. Inasmuch as ex-President Taft has publicly declared that, while certain reservations might be accepted, if he were a Senator he would vote to ratify the Treaty without change or reservation, we must conclude that the Indiana Senator had not impliedly considered all the implications of the words he used. We hope the time has passed for extreme and passionate discourse on either side, that the people and the Senate, putting all that aside, will soberly try to understand the Treaty and the Covenant, to get rid of error, and to see with clear vision what would be the situation of the nations of the world and of the United States with the Treaty and the League, and what it would be without them.

Study and discussion have cleared the air of much misconception, have disposed of many if not most of the objections against the Treaty. Senator Johnson's amendment cannot prevail, we judge, since he was informed yesterday that eight Republicans would vote against it.
It has been demonstrated, we think, that votes in the Assembly were given to Great Britain's self-governing possessions for sound and reasonable reasons, and that the unanimity required for elections to the Council and for action by the Council security-ly protects the United States and other nations against this apparent preponderance. Our Monroe Doctrine and our sovereign right to determine for ourselves all domestic questions are amply guaranteed against infringement, and those subjects have practically disappeared from the discussion. There remains Article X.

regarding the undertaking to defend nations against external aggression. That is now the chief, if not the only, remaining bone of contention.

To the end that the light of understanding and of reason may be thrown upon this main point of our whole history, the spirit of our people, have predisposed our fellow-men in other lands to the belief that upon a question of that unequalled moment the decision of the United States would not for a single day remain in doubt. Shall we, can we, forfeit their confidence?

Ashurst Comes Out For Treaty; Tells Wilson Doubts Are Gone

Washington, September 25.— Senator Ashurst, Democrat, of Arizona, who up to a few days ago had been counted upon by Republican leaders as a probable supporter of reservations and perhaps of the Johnson amendment to the Peace Treaty, today sent a telegram to President Wilson at Pueblo, Col., stating that he would vote against all reservations and amendments.

Mr. Ashurst received a telegram from the President some days ago on his reported attitude for reservations and replied at that time that he was still considering the matter.
His despatch to the President reads:

"Although I have had, as you of course know, serious doubts and misgivings as to some parts of the League covenant, I am nevertheless convinced that Germany would obtain a material advantage and would come out of the war practically a victor were the treaty amended or were any reservations adopted. To my mind it is the treaty or no treaty, and I for one am not willing to assume the frightful responsibility of precipitating chaos upon the world by some haphazard amendment or reservation."

"I have studied this tremendous question from every angle and am sure that at this juncture I can render my country, indeed the entire civilized world, a great service by voting for the treaty without amendments or reservations."

Only Woman Member Of Congress Writes On Ruins Of War

BY JEANNETTE RANKIN
Former Member of Congress from Montana

Nothing in the devastated district seemed to me to tell the story of the war with the same awful vividness as the frontier of barbed wire left behind.

It follows a zig-zag course, like a rail fence, about twenty feet thick. You can see over it, and through it; and yet to try to pass it means certain death.

As a child on the ranch, I once saw a horse that had been killed in a barbed wire fence. There were only five or six strands, but the poor beast, once caught, could not escape. Every movement he made only fastened him tighter in the wire.

I remembered that picture when I saw the battlefields and that low barrier of wire, so slight-looking and yet so deadly. And I realized that a mere man, unaided by machinery or inventions, could never surmount it alive. Before the advance was ordered, the guns were trained upon this wire until it was buried or mixed with earth. Then, over the passages thus made, the men went forward.

MAKES VAST WILDERNESS
Today it is still standing there, a striking reminder of our human limitations. And it will tax human ingenuity to get rid of it again, for it has made a wilderness out of land which had been cleared for hundreds upon hundreds of years.

We left Paris for the devastated districts on the last Saturday in April. The calendar said that Spring was on the way, but the weather ignored the calendar and remained wet and chill during most of our journey. Miss Addams, Miss Wald, Dr. Alice Hamilton, Miss Griffiths, Miss Ashe and myself made up our party, traveling in two automobiles. Through the kind arrangements of the Red Cross and the Society of Friends we were assured in advance of hospitality for our overnight stop.

Our first halt was at Vic-sur-Aisne, which we reached at noon. It is an American relief station run by American women. In charge of things were aristocratic descendants of the Knickerbockers, driving camions and heaving grocery boxes. Their hands were so scarred and grimy that I could not imagine them as ever becoming clean again, much less as manicured. They took their ease with short hair and cigarettes, and seemed indifferent to the extremest hardships. The roof of their house was caving in, they had nothing but paper windows to keep out the cold and wet, and they cooked on a coal fire which had to be stoked up every morning before breakfast could be thought of.

TREES Felled IN RETREAT
They were indeed a great contrast to the chic ladies whom we had just left behind in Paris. I could not help wondering why it was that no French women were doing this kind of work. But it was impossible to imagine the Parisiennes in this place—the widows with their long veils hanging below their short skirts and the m'a'm'selles with their doll's house toilettes were certainly never intended for rough work like this. All that was another world entirely, though it was only a few hours distant by automobile.

Our trip took us through what was once the neat country land of France. Where the trees once grew in orderly rows were broken trunks and sawed-off stumps. Some of this seemed due to sheer destructiveness, and for some of it you could see the military reason. Here the French had opened up a straightaway view or used the timber, or there the Germans had felled the trees across the road to aid their retreat. We learned that the destruction of French timber in all amounted only to what would have been the cutting of three years in normal times.

The peasants were coming back to their little farms, arriving on foot and with handcars. They had money in their pockets, for they had been at work in the industrial towns, but it was like having gold in the desert. There was nothing they could buy with it.

Sometimes we drove through a village without recognizing that it was a village. After we had passed through we would realize, perhaps, that the heap of brick and mud once had been a group of homes in the midst of smiling fields. But the homes were now demolished and the fertile fields were churned and blasted by the angry force of the explosives.

As we went on we learned to tell the difference between ground which had been fought over once and that which had been fought over again and again. Around Arras the contention had been frightful. For weeks in Albert every person who appeared on the street had been killed. In many places there were signs on the buildings in several languages, showing that they had been occupied successively by troops of the different nations. It was like following the track of a cyclone and wondering at its caprices. You could not make out why this building was demolished and the next one unharmed; or why a single statue would be standing untouched in the midst of chaos.

At Amiens, where we stopped for the night, the streets were thronged with English soldiers. The cathedral had not been destroyed, though all around were ruins. The stained glass had been removed from the rose windows and the sand bags were still piled against the base. The saints had been taken out of their niches and carried indoors for safety. As we drove away the next morning we could look back for miles and still see the cathedral and its spires outlined against the sky.

Late in the afternoon of Sunday we arrived at Lens. Lens was the coal field which the Germans destroyed by blowing up the mines from the inside. These are the mines for which Germany is to pay with the Saar Valley. This was perhaps the most frightful material destruction that we saw.

Just before coming into Lens we saw a huge cross towering in the half-light. It was growing cold and dark and pouring rain, and as we looked at the solemn emblem we knew that it signified that many bodies were lying at its foot. All through the country there are little crosses which show where a man has fallen and been buried. The grave registration troops are now at work, removing the bodies to the cemetery on French soil which our government has purchased from the French. We met

Parents, Help Make Schoolwork Easy!

By Dr. W. A. MacKeever, M.D.

Help your boy or girl arrange a tabulated schedule of all the duties and activities of the entire 24-hour day. Give the matter unusual care and attention, balancing the items so as to provide for both routine and variety. Have this outline attractively copied in the form of a placard and hang it over the study table for a constant monitor.

Thus the high school course or the junior college course assigned to your son or daughter may be made from 25 to 50 percent easier. I have tried this scheme with nearly 5,000 freshman college students, and with good results. But such young people know very little about the valuable art of systematic time economy, as I have discovered through long experience in dealing directly with the problem. They must be shown. Therefore, include on the schedule the following:

The period for rising and dressing; the breakfast hour; the routine tasks about the house; the complete list of recreation hours; the study hours at home and at school; the daily exercise and recreation; the noon lunch period; the evening dinner hour;

the evening study program; the evenings out for entertainment; the holiday (Saturday) schedule; the Sunday activities; the regular time of retiring.

Now, here is shown a secret of growing power as a student and of increasing self-confidence and self-supremacy. Your boy will not at first willingly accept the idea here suggested. He may even resent it or regard it as simply another scheme of yours to put off his rights and liberties. But you should argue from the opposite point, namely, that to follow such a well-arranged program will actually give him more time to play. And you should prove the contention by placing a "play and recreation" period on his daily schedule as carefully as you arrange for his study and recitation periods.

Regarding only one matter may the parent and child possibly raise a sharp discussion, and that is the arrangements of the evenings out—how many and what ones. Your boy or girl should stay regularly at home and study on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings. Make this a fixed habit and it will soon become a delight.

On the other hand, he should be encouraged to get out with the young crowd or with a friend two of the other three evenings. On this score, it would be ideal to attend some kind of all-school social affair Friday evening—literary society, party, sing-fest, athletic practice—and attend church service Sunday evening, Saturday evening should be kept an open date, in or out as occasion might require.

Thus the hit-or-miss and wasteful methods of the young student may be largely eliminated. The mind will be kept clear and keen for study. The body will be kept well and strong for full support of the effort, and the spiritual energy will tend to dominate the buoyant young life.

Finally, since I am writing this in the interest of a class of young people whom I love dearly and in respect to whose joys and whole pleasures I have for years shown a deep interest, perhaps the parents may use my name as an authority in their effort to have the foregoing scheme put into practice.

Rubber Prices

Messrs. Meyer and Measor, Singapore report that the auctions this week showed prices of cents 92 to 94 for both Pale Crepe and Smoked Sheet, the tendency of the market being steady.

Messrs. R. N. Truman and Co. have received the following telegraphic report from their Singapore agents in connection with the last weekly report auctions held at Singapore on October 22.

Average price realised.
No. 1 Smoked Sheet—$0.93 1/2 per pound equivalent to 2s. 2 1/2 d. ex warehouse Singapore.

No. 1 Crepe—$0.93 1/2 per pound equivalent to 2s. 2 1/2 d. ex warehouse Singapore.
Demand is moderate, offered 1,090 tons; sold 714 tons.

Cotton Market

In their report dated October 25, Messrs. J. Spunt and Co. write as follows:

China Cotton.—During the past week prices, with but scanty fluctuations, continued to rule on the same level as that recorded in the previous period and whatever little activity was experienced transpired to have been business done among the native dealers for future deliveries which, coupled with a moderate demand for the local staple from the Chinese spinners brought about a little firmness which was accentuated at the close by the further rise in Mid-Americans and Indians.

The receipts from the interior marts continue to be meted out rather sparsely and while the stringency in the money market is still existent, such a condition apparently has thus far in no way affected to any marked extent the holders of the raw material. As to the future of the market the outlook is such as to indicate buying at every favorable break with a view to safeguarding against any sharp upward movement. Some of the market firm.

Exchange Market

Messrs. Maitland, Fearon and Brand write as follows in their report for week ending October 22.
Exchange.—Silver in London at 64 1/2 d. for ready delivery and 63 1/2 d. forward shows an advance of 1 1/2 d. and 1 1/2 d. respectively, since this day last week. Local rates have risen accordingly, T.T. on London being today 6s. 6d., as against 6s. 3 1/2 d. last Wednesday.

The market has ruled exceptionally strong throughout. Shortage of sycee, abundance of cover and very small demand are the three main factors contributing to this. A premium of 1d. to 1 1/2 d. is being asked for November bills.

There are sellers today at 6s. 9d. T.T. for October delivery, and business has been done as high as 6s. 9 1/2 d. cash during the last day or two.

The New York/London rate at 4.17 1/4 has fallen away slightly. The London/Paris rate today is 36.37, and Franc bills for November delivery can be placed at current rates.

The local stock of sycee and Bar Silver at Tls. 18,662,000 is about 6 lakhs down, while the stock of Mexican and Chinese dollars at $12,780,000 is $620,000 down.

REPORTED AMERICAN JAPANESE DISPUTE

Control Of Siberian Railroads Claimed To Be Cause Of Friction

AMERICA ASKS FOR BETTER CO-OPERATION

Would Withdraw Troops From Siberia If Japanese Army Does Not Accord Such

London, October 24.—According to what your correspondent learns, a dispute exists between Japan and America with regard to the guarding of the Siberian railways. It appears that America submitted a proposition to Japan that, after the withdrawal of the Americans from Siberia, the railways belonging to the spheres of American control should be guarded by Japan. The Japanese military authorities, however, do not like the idea of playing the part of a watch dog for America, and declined to agree to the American proposal. The American Government then forwarded a sort of ultimatum to the Japanese Government and the headquarters of the Japanese expedition in Siberia, through the American Charge d'Affaires in Tokyo and the American Ambassador in Siberia, stating that, unless Japan agrees to the American proposition, America will be compelled to discontinue her co-operation with Japan as regards the control of the Siberian railways.

Wanted Seminoff Men Checked

Referring to the above telegram, the Asahi says that toward the close of August America sent a communication to the headquarters of the Japanese army at Vladivostok pointing out the lack of sufficient co-operation of the Japanese in the control of the railways, and stating that, as the frequent obstructions of railway traffic by Seminoff's men was due to the tacit countenance thereof on the part of the Japanese troops, the latter's influence should be brought to bear on the Seminoff forces to prevent their reckless behavior. The Japanese headquarters replied that there was no foundation for the allegations contained in the American communication, and that, as regards the Seminoff men, the Japanese commander was not in a position to do anything definite. Subsequently, at the beginning of Sept., America forwarded a note to the Japanese Government in which it was declared that if the proposals submitted to Japan were not agreed to by her, the American troops would not be able to stay in Siberia and take concerted action with the Japanese and would be obliged to withdraw from Siberia. The matter is now receiving the consideration of the Japanese Government, and no reply has yet been given to America.
